

Abstract

In an ink container loading structure comprising an ink container removably mounted on a recording apparatus and an ink container loading portion provided with an ink container engagement portion in which the ink container is loaded and with which the ink discharge port of the ink container is engaged ,to prevent ink from running from the ink container to stain the operator's hand or the recording apparatus's surroundings of the ink container loading portion when the ink container is removed from the recording apparatus.

The ink container engaging direction (direction of arrow A) of the ink discharge port (11) of the ink container (1) with the ink container engagement portion (20) is directed obliquely downward with respect to the horizontal.